Bohol couple win Yorac award for new way to teach physics

By DJ Yap

THIS COUPLE, BOTH PHYSICISTS, quit their promising careers at the University of the Philippines in Diliman, Quezon City, and moved to the remote province of Bohol to start a family.

In 1995, they "double-handedly" transformed the way physics, mathematics and other tough subjects are taught to high school students in the small seaside town of Argao and many other places beyond.

For their efforts, Christopher C. Bernido and Ms. Victoria Cepillo Bernido, the president and principal, respectively, of the Research Center for Theoretical Physics, have been conferred the General Haplos Yorac Award. They are the first couple to be thus recognized.

"This comes as a total surprise for us," Bernido, 47, said upon accepting the award on Wednesday night at the Marikina Theatre in Pasig City.

Said Christopher, 50, "This award is good to see. It suggests that something good we might have done in the past. So how can we really pay back those people who have made this marvelous nation?"

Now on its third year, the General Haplos Yorac Award is given to teachers who have shown outstanding public service and are shining examples of exemplary teachers.

THE BRUTAL MURDER OF THE 20-year-old daughter of a leading communist guerrilla has caught the attention of President Manuel Aquino, who ordered the Presidential Committee on Human Rights and the Commission on Human Rights to look into the matter.

Speaking yesterday were the government-run Bayan ng Bayan, Press Secretary Gorge Bernido said the two panels would "not desist" on the killing of Rubilyn Pineda, a daughter of Lorenzo Pineda aka Commander Pango of the New People's Army (NPA).

The President ordered the investigation of the reported killing of the daughter of Commander Pango. The state also recognizes that this is a violation of human rights and that those responsible should be punished," Bernido said.

They, too, can sing and perform on stage

By Davin L. Lucas

WHY DO CHINO SANTOS-CONRO, Benji Alarcon, Antonio Goyangco Jr. and George Tang have to perform?

Probably the fact that they are outstanding successful leaders of the companies and industries that they head.

But, as they proved at the Cultural Center of the Philippines on Friday night, the fact is also extremely talented artists, able to sing, play an instrument, even to a strong writer a poem and generally hold their own with some of the best professional performers in the country.

Teacher of the blind inducted into Hall of Fame

By Philip C. Tubasa

SWELLEN GALL REMEMBERS THE DAY in the early 1990s when she was on the point of joining the ranks of teachers from the country in search of greater personal freedom.

All that was needed was her signature on the contract hiring her services as a special education teacher (Sped) in the United States.

Despite the allures of the dollar, however, Galla opted to stay.

She realized that her true calling was in teaching visually impaired students at the Ramon Magsaysay High School on Espada Boulevard in Manila.

Her talent of love in helping her blind students to "see" and appreciate the intricacies of human biology, the complexity of math equations, and the nuances of music has brought Galla, 61, so many blessings.

Galla has won all the awards and honors that could be possibly won for a teacher in the country so that she was recently inducted into the Hall of Fame of the teaching profession.

The Department of Education has dubbed her the "Sama Sana" of the

Give poll automation a chance, urges Palace

By Yl Bugarino and Cynthia D. Batara

MANILA (PDI) YESTERDAY AMRE ITS allies in the House of Representatives to give bill automation a chance to work in the 2010 national elections out of respect for President Maunpog's wishes.

"We must give the bill a chance to work for the President has authorized this for the bill to be passed. Our intention should be to respect that," said House Secretary Grego Francisco over the phone.

Even after both chambers of Congress approved the P11.3-billion supplemental budget for poll automation, administration lawmakers had not given up on a "compromise bill" that would allow back automation.

The bill authorized by House Rep. Mike Lanza would likely be approved at the end of the session on April 23, Speaker Francisco Rogales said, after it failed to pass approval before the House voted on a month-long recess to end on Wednesday.

The lawmakers and election officials should all agree to a dialogue and discuss automated systems to allow full automation of the 2010 elections, presidential political adviser General Claudio said.

"Given the resistance to passing another measure to speed the existing automation bill, it is imperative the Congress and members of Congress not delay and address concerns about the reliability and legality of full automation," he said in a text message.

Claudio said it was possible the House would sign into law the P11.3-billion poll automation budget simultaneously with the P1.4-billion national budget.

"This is to indicate any legal questions arising out of a supplemental budget being signed into law ahead of the regular budget," he said.

The national budget will be enacted later in June than March 23, he added.

In a related development, Congress Clerk Jose Myle said the poll agency was open to holding a televised hearing for the poll automation machine.

Speaking on the President's radio at the 10:00 radio program, "This is the Day," Myle said the Commission was willing to hold a televised hearing for the poll automation machine.

Myle was reacting to Dr. Geron's suggestion that TV stations cover the bidding live to avoid any suspicion of rigging.

"That would be better. That would be more transparent," Myle told Dr. Geron.

He said that if the TV stations would cover the bidding, he would have the proceedings videotaped and posted to the media for public dissemination.

"While we have received, politicians want to see video (live) of it and we intend to see it later (telecast)," he said.

THE COMPREHENSIVE AGRARIAN REFORM PROGRAM

2 Decades of Spurring Productivity in the Countryside

In June 1988, a land lease for redistributive justice was signed here.

Today, rural communities continue to reap social and economic benefits from the law, which for 20 years, has set in motion the Comprehensive Agrarian Reform Program (CARP).

CARP, rooted from the struggles of the human spirit, has assigned landlessness to over 4.5 million farmworker-beneficiaries with the distribution of 7.2 million hectares of agricultural land, by far the highest number of land transfer in the history of agrarian reform in the world.

The program continued to gain ground under the administration of President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo as the Department of Agrarian Reform consistently surpassed annual land acquisition targets, which led to the distribution of an average of 120,000 hectares per year.

While the CARP-inspired hope on landless farmers, the President has certified the new CARP extension bill as urgent, thus, giving impetus to an important Constitutional mandate.

As it nurtured the Filipino's virtue of industry and hardwork, the program has also unleashed opportunities to those who till the land. Farming families in isolated villages relish the conveniences brought by the solar power, new roads and bridges connect inaccessible hamlets, children of beneficiaries go to school through scholarship grants, rural cooperatives benefit from credit and healthbook programs. Above all, an entrepreneurial, progressive and confident new breed of owner-cultivators has emerged - all, says Agrarian Reform Secretary Homer C. Paredes, committed to transform their communities into vibrant agribusiness zones.

This stream of opportunities cascades in LIRH agrarian reform communities (ARC), the last of DAR's economic assistance.

What has been done?

Land Acquisitions and Distribution

- DAR and DARAF distributed 7.2 million to 4.5 M ARBs
- DAR acquired 4.1 M ha dedicated to CARP
- 1.7 M hectares placed under household management with 1.2 M tenant farmers

Program Beneficiaries Development

- 787,167 agrarian reform beneficiaries (ARBs) fully covered under the design-assisted projects (DAPs)
- 7,170 km to district roads, bridges, jetties and port facilities
- 976 educational facilities
- 2,028,408 agricultural operations
- 238,000 ARBs' leadership training members and 100 farm extension
- Training and marketing assistance

Support services delivered through the FAPs and Agrarian Reform Fund:

- 11,200 kilometers of farm-to-market roads
- 236,015 hectares connectivity-irrigation systems
- multi-purpose buildings
- 114 bridge projects
- 428 units of post-harvest facilities
- 590 units of public water systems

Agrarian Justice Delivery

- Processed 320,800 application cases and granted 163,214 cases to agrarian reform members

FEMASP Scholarship

- Granted free college education to 2,600 students

More ARBs Celebrate Success

CARP made the ARBs wiser as they chose to hold on to their streams and lead a better life ahead.

"We own an average of P1-M per hectare. The biggest share comes from the sale of mangrove, which my child, Prudente and his sister Marigold Caporin, export to Hongkong, Japan and United States are my chief targets." - Estrella de Guzman, 68M, Calatagan, Negros Occidental

"CARP projects helped us to move out. Now, land is always available, transportation is easy, and the community is peaceful. The wounds of the past were healed and the pains forgotten." - Melina Bascudo, 60-year-old female ARB, Marikina, Rizal

"Looking back, we are very lucky that our former landlords like Arroyos knew of our plight that when the situation had settled, they encouraged us to value landwork. Now, the certificate bearing our names as landowners constantly remind us that we should make the land productive as we are not only working for other people but for ourselves and our families." - Helen Caporin, 61, Gila-Akutan, Marikina Palawan, Marikina, Negros Occidental

"Our members should pass a bill extending CARP to distribute lands to tenant farmers and continue organizing ARBs to sustain the gains of the program. CARP has done so much to improve the living condition of farmers, far as much still needs to be done." - Benito "Go Ben" Bascudo, 60-year-old male, Calatagan, Negros Occidental

"Our work started after receiving five ranking cards from DAR-DARAF's dairy project program. After six months, each card started to deliver an average of 12 liters of fresh milk for combined 60 liters a day. At P40 a liter, I earned a gross income of P1,920 daily." - Juan Infante, 60-year-old male, Calatagan, Negros Occidental

"I have been poultry-raising and planting rice. I also feed grazing. Today, I have 30 mango trees, 60 avocados, 40 cardinals, 80 chickens, 30 magistrates per 100 sheep pens. Thanks to DAR's training." - Nangay Arangal, 60-year-old female, Calatagan, Negros Occidental

"Our experience was a lot. Thanks for the full support of DAR and DARAF. We were able to find a viable market for our product." - Amalia Caporin, 60-year-old female, Calatagan, Negros Occidental

"The seaweed farming introduced by DAR through MRCAG is a great asset. We are not only able to earn good money for a living." - Juliana Pan, 60-year-old female, Calatagan, Negros Occidental

"People were discouraged because vegetables are sold at a low price. They were not able to find a market for their products. Through the CARP, our farmers started to go back to vegetable farming. We learned to do a technology called plastic mulching and we are able to control erosion and control the growth of weeds." - Maribel Maribel Vegetables Farmer, Pateros, Marikina

"The scholarship brought me to where I am now. CARP was very instrumental in making me and my family survive during those times we were in dire need of financial help." - Helen Bascudo, 60-year-old female, Calatagan, Negros Occidental

"We used to spend P500 a month on kerosene for our lamps. With the solar electrification project of DAR (DAPTS), we only pay P170 a month for our power consumption." - Estrella de Guzman, 68M, Calatagan, Negros Occidental

"Significant, because we have a lot of things to do. We are happy because we are happy to see the progress of DAR (DAPTS) in our area. We are happy to see the progress of DAR (DAPTS) in our area." - Benito "Go Ben" Bascudo, 60-year-old male, Calatagan, Negros Occidental

"I'm happy because Jose Maria Arroyo Jr. was so generous that he gave up all his 80-hectare property to us, and just because he did not want even a single hectare for him and his daughter." - Helen Bascudo, 60-year-old female, Calatagan, Negros Occidental

"I also give my DAR support to the extension of CARP. I hope our farmers will continue to benefit from the support services the program is implementing in the countryside." - Michael Ben, 60-year-old male, Calatagan, Negros Occidental

Studies Confirm CARP gains

Studies conducted by the University of the Philippines Los Baños (UPLB) in 2001 and 2007 showed the following:

- ARBs have higher net income per capita (based on 2007 prices) than ARBs and 20% higher than non-ARBs
- 63 percent of the non-ARB households were below poverty line while only 40 percent were poor among the ARBs households in 2007
- 75% of the awarded lands are still occupied by the original ARBs
- selling and renting of lands by the ARBs was significantly less than 1% of the total number of parcels acquired by the ARBs

The most recent study undertaken by the Asia Pacific Policy Center (APPC) showed the following findings: increased income, poverty reduction, and farm productivity.

- Per capita expenditure, per capita income, and per capita net farm incomes of farmers with land (together in ARCs or non-ARCs) are significantly lower than their counterparts owning land
- An ARB member in an ARC is better off than one residing in a non-ARC barangay, using both per capita income and expenditure as indicators of welfare
- An ARB member of a non-ARC but was less off than the member in a non-ARC barangay
- Poverty incidence in ARC barangays decreased from 45 to 25% over the period 1990 and 2000

TO ACTIVATE OR NOT TO ACTIVATE? Built during the Marcos regime at a cost of $2.3 billion, the nuclear power plant in Marikina, Batangas remains unused.

The imperative of nuke power

By Rep. Mark D. Copeland

MY ENTHUSIASM FOR all things technical and industrial has motivated me to become familiar with nuclear energy and the Batangas Nuclear Power Plant (BNPP). This developed into a desire to translate into layman's terms the background of nuclear energy, sometimes a tad too technical and foreign for the public. I would like to help put an end to the mindless repetition of anti-nuke propaganda in favor of logic and informed thinking.

Allow me to present a list of the many points raised against nuclear energy to ground and BNPP in particular as a layman who sees the promise of this technology for the country's development.

Environment, safety

There are two obvious fallacies when it comes to off-site power generation—it is to construct with one malfunction and to construct with one malfunction. It is to construct with one malfunction and to construct with one malfunction. It is to construct with one malfunction and to construct with one malfunction.

Heavy metals

Used fuel rods are left in water to cool them down. The water is then pumped out and the fuel rods are left in water to cool them down. The water is then pumped out and the fuel rods are left in water to cool them down.

Waste disposal

On a disposal site for nuclear waste, the waste is placed in a container and the container is placed in a container. The waste is placed in a container and the container is placed in a container.

Anti-nuke rhetoric

We would have wanted to cover many more issues that are relevant to nuclear power, but due to time and space constraints, we are constrained to what has been said here. It would not be justice to cry and shout during the night about nuclear power and then to say that it is not a problem.

Power

When it comes to BNPP, it is not a problem. It is not a problem. It is not a problem. It is not a problem. It is not a problem. It is not a problem. It is not a problem.

Rep. Mark D. Copeland

read elsewhere. We can build nuclear plants for new capacity to take the place of the fossil fuel plants to be retired. Together with this, we should adopt a sensible, professional, logical and other sources of energy that do not contribute to the destruction of our environment, as long as they can economically compete with nuclear energy.

Sensationalized

This story has been repeated over and over again, sensationalized by anti-nuke lobbyists in having caused the deaths of tens of thousands, like the Chernobyl plant that took an instant safety design—as an example of how nuclear power can be dangerous.

Reliability

The BNPP is a state-of-the-art nuclear power plant. It is a state-of-the-art nuclear power plant. It is a state-of-the-art nuclear power plant. It is a state-of-the-art nuclear power plant.

Additional

Additionally, the BNPP is a state-of-the-art nuclear power plant. It is a state-of-the-art nuclear power plant. It is a state-of-the-art nuclear power plant. It is a state-of-the-art nuclear power plant.

As other industry sources of such energy record and the BNPP is part of the western nuclear power industry.

By way of comparison, the Bataan coal-fired power plant in Bataan, which closed in December 1984, which had a capacity of 1,000 MW, employed 1,000 people. It cost $2.3 billion and immediately an estimated 2,000 died while the Bataan coal-fired power plant in Bataan, which closed in December 1984, which had a capacity of 1,000 MW, employed 1,000 people.

The BNPP is a state-of-the-art nuclear power plant. It is a state-of-the-art nuclear power plant. It is a state-of-the-art nuclear power plant. It is a state-of-the-art nuclear power plant.

Aggressive

In this light, I wonder why opposition to nuclear energy is so aggressive? It is because it is so aggressive? It is because it is so aggressive? It is because it is so aggressive? It is because it is so aggressive?

Crisis takes away 3,500 Luzon jobs

INQUIRING
Presumably, what remains of part of the Baguio City public market that was destroyed by a fire recently. In the central fire in the market since 2008.

CITY OF SAN FERNANDO—THE GLOBAL FINANCIAL crisis has taken hard on 47 companies in Central Luzon, leaving 3,554 workers jobless and 6,037 others working for fewer hours in the last two months of 2008 and March 2 this year, reports from the Department of Labor and Employment showed.

The companies, three of them on the Clark Freeport in Pampanga and two in Bulacan, have been downsizing the employees and meeting its flexible work arrangements for 304 others.

Flexible work include income sharing, short-term employment, lay-off, rotation of workers or compensatory workweek.

The five companies are engaged in agri-business and in the manufacturing of consumer goods, plastics and wires.

The DLEI, against the backdrop of the agency's long history, has been monitoring the 47 companies from its Clark Freeport in Pampanga and two in Bulacan, last reported to have taken hard on at least 24 workers in February.

At the Clark Freeport, several reports have appeared in the region, mostly on the economic downturn, impacts the capital goods sector. In February, the capital goods sector recorded 41.62 million in January or almost double that of the 2007 million in January 2008, according to a report from the national government and monitoring agencies of the Clark Development Corp.

In January 2009, government-owned, business-oriented and private companies, mostly in the region, have been downsizing the employees and meeting its flexible work arrangements for 304 others.

Cebu City—JAMES THE DROVING INSTRUCTOR, a former Filipino resident and domestic worker who lost 2008 due to the global economic crisis, the government will assist him in his job search.

The Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) said it would hold entrepreneurship seminars and skills training programs in the two provinces on March 11-12, 2009.

The DTI said, in a statement, that the seminars and training programs were "aimed at helping OFWs who lost jobs due to the global economic crisis."

In an earlier interview, DTI Regional Director in Cebu said the agency would launch the program to help displaced workers who have lost their jobs.

James, who has worked as a driver for 10 years, lost his job in 2008. He is now looking for a new job.

Chemical use seen behind spread of corn farm pests

LA TRINIDAD, NEGROS—THE EXCESSIVE use of chemical farm inputs and pesticides in the region has been identified by agricultural experts as the cause of the massive growth of an insect that is now threatening to wipe out the rice fields of the region.

The Department of Agriculture has identified the rapid growth of the corn plant as the cause of the pest's spread since the pest has already reached 100,000 hectares of the region's corn plantations in various crop areas.

The damage represents 60 percent of the area's total corn area and has brought significant loss to 5,000 corn farmers and their families in 10 villages.

The situation is not an isolated case. In the case of a 100,000-hectare corn area, the damage is seen in the region's corn plantations in various crop areas.

2008 SC RULING EFFECTS

Baguio bracing for onslaught of casinos

BAGUIO CITY—A 2008 SUPREME COURT ruling on Camp John Hay has resulted in the 17 subdivisions owned by the Baguio government are prohibited from its development, including a prohibition against a casino inside the tourism complex, Mayor Fortunato Baudela said on Tuesday.

Baudela said the ruling came in under new legislation that would strengthen the constitution, which he said is being challenged.

He said the high court nullified a 1994 proclamation issued by former President Fidel Ramos, which allowed the construction of Camp John Hay Special Economic Zone (CJSEZ).

Baudela said the high court had ruled the law is unconstitutional. He said the law is unconstitutional because it is against the 1987 Constitution, which gave the power to Congress to create economic zones with tax incentives.

New laws

The law was enacted when Congress passed Republic Act 9594 in 2007 that created the CJSEZ.

"The law is unconstitutional because it is against the 1987 Constitution," Baudela said.

On February 19, 2008, the court nullified the law. Baudela said the law is unconstitutional because it is against the 1987 Constitution, which gave the power to Congress to create economic zones with tax incentives.

How to empower women migrants in Germany

By Peachy Wild-Colegio
Contributor

MORE THAN TWO decades ago, Cecilia Ranzinger moved to Munich, Germany, to join her husband, Cleto Ranzinger, in building a new life together. It was a painful and difficult decision, as she had to leave her two sons from a previous marriage and move to a country where she hardly knew anybody or anything, except from what she learned from her European History classes at the University of the Philippines.

The adjustment period in her adopted land and the process she went through to find her place paralleled similar stories, but at a faster pace. Agnes does not just build a family, but she also builds a support system as well. She has to face the challenges of an entirely new environment and would need some friend and support.

First job

"When I got to Munich, I needed to get a job to support myself. I went to a recruitment agency, and I was hired as a secretary in a small company."

It was a challenging work that brought her to the constant stress where she caught her first great love woman who would be her husband for the rest of her life.

and she was the one who brought her to Germany. Cecilia Ranzinger, 45, is a German citizen and a mother of two children. She is a former secretary and a former teacher. She is a former secretary and a former teacher. She is a former secretary and a former teacher.

US must reset gift to Russia before relations can be reset

WASHINGTON—U.S. SENATOR CHRIS CLINTON said in a letter to her husband, Sen. Hillary Clinton, that she was "glad to see the senator's return to the Senate" but that she was "glad to see the senator's return to the Senate" but that she was "glad to see the senator's return to the Senate."

U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, in greeting Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov, presented him with a gift and a letter from her husband, Sen. Chris Clinton.

Russian word "perestroika." The gift was a play on U.S. President Joe Biden's office hours last month for the two senators in "the reset button" on their relationship. "We wanted him to get the right Russian word," Clinton said, handing the letter to Lavrov. "You think we got it?"

"You got it wrong," he replied, explaining that the Americans had come up with the Russian word for "reset," "perestroika." The word is a play on the Russian word "perestroika," she said quickly with a bit of a laugh.

Larson, Clinton and Lavrov agreed they had a wide-ranging and positive exchange, laying the groundwork to negotiate a strategic arms reduction treaty and discussing ways of improving or stabilizing relations, a major focus of conversation between the countries.

But that laughter and laughter kept going in the way Lavrov said he hoped the linguistic mistake would "translate" to the strengthening of Russian-U.S. relations.

Clinton said her husband's return to the Senate was a "great day" for her. "I'm glad to see the senator's return to the Senate," she said. "I'm glad to see the senator's return to the Senate." She said she was "glad to see the senator's return to the Senate."

Vast job losses in US indicate transformation of its economy

AS GOVERNMENT DATA REVEALED THAT 651,000 MORE jobs disappeared in February, a worse record book that growing joblessness may reflect a wrenching restructuring of the US economy.

The unemployment rate edged up to 8.1 percent, from 7.9 percent in January, its highest level in a quarter-century. In key industries—manufacturing, financial services and retail—losses have accelerated in quick succession, as if to suggest that many companies are dismantling whole sectors of business.

"These jobs aren't coming back," said John F. Thuma, chief economist at PricewaterhouseCoopers in Charlotte, N.C. "It's not of production."

But others said it was not all bad. "It's going to happen sooner or later than the United States. There are going to be lower costs, lower factors, lower financial services operations. Firms are making strategic decisions that they don't want to be in their businesses."

The global movement of companies in the American workplace largely depends on how long it takes for an economic recovery in the last half of this year, and it added to a growing sense that 2009 is probably a lost cause.

Many economists now estimate that the American economy will improve before the last months of the year, as the Obama administration's $787 billion emergency spending program begins to work through the economy.

"The current pace of decline is unsustainable," said Robert Richman, chief economist at FIC. "We are now talking about a new model of the economy, and that's not the kind of change in the United States economy."

The monthly snapshot of the national employment picture revealed an even bleaker picture in the government sector.

agreed the job losses in December and January. The economy had shed at least 650,000 jobs a month for three straight months, the most decline in percentage since the last half of the 1970s.

Since the recession began, the economy has eliminated a net total of roughly 4.4 million jobs, with more than half of those positions disappearing in the last two months alone.

But the numbers also show that the economy is not as bad as it seems. The unemployment rate is still only 8.1 percent, and the economy is still growing.

Mystery illness strikes British diners

LONDON—WHAT WOULD BE THE first sign of a mysterious illness? It was a common question in a restaurant in London.

Whether it was, it has caused hundreds of people in the past month to report feeling sick, with symptoms including nausea, dizziness and loss of appetite. The illness is being described as "mystery illness" and "mystery illness" and "mystery illness."

Obama to reverse Bush on stem-cell research

WASHINGTON—PRESIDENT OBAMA WILL ANNOUNCE on Monday that he is reversing Bush administration limits on federal financing for embryonic stem-cell research as part of a pledge to separate science and politics, White House officials said on Friday.

As a presidential candidate, Obama spoke out in favor of stem-cell research, so his intention is to undo the curbs put in place by former President George W. Bush to not surprise. But the decision is symbolic of great intent, involving a long controversial intersection of science and personal moral beliefs.

The officials said that administration of untested stem-cell research, as well as about 30

Democratic and Republican lawmakers who support it, have been invited to a White House ceremony scheduled for 11:45 a.m. Eastern, when the president is expected to make an announcement.

One person familiar with planning for the event said the president would also spell out a general return to "sound science" in his administration, as a fulfillment of his campaign promise to draw a demarcation line between politics and science. The Bush administration was often accused of trying to shade, or even suppress, the findings of government scientists on climate change, gun education, counterterrorism and other issues, as well as stem cells.

Obama's announcement is not likely to lead to any immediate change in government policy, since it may take many months for the National Institutes of Health to develop new guidelines for research. Still, research advocates are expected to push for the process to go as quickly as possible to ensure that universities have time to submit grant proposals that can be reviewed and awarded before September 2009, when the health institute must commit the last of the $3.6 billion given to the NIH as part of the research stimulus program.

Because embryonic stem cells are capable of developing into any type of cell in the body, many scientists believe they may one day be able to provide tissues to replace worn-out organs or nonfunctioning cells, and thus offer potential new treatments for diabetes, heart disease, Parkinson's disease and other ailments. Some researchers say that stem cells might even be used someday to treat neurodegenerative diseases like dementia in the typical case.

But many people have a moral problem with embryonic stem-cell research, because creation of the cells results in destruction of human embryos. SPT

SINGHA OPEN

Juvic just two down with 65

FRASER THOMAS

—After Juvic made a second straight five-under-par 53 on Sunday and moved within seven strokes of the lead, there was group going into the final round of the Singha Thailand Open here.

The 34-year-old Filipino star, who tied for third in the Asian Tour's inaugural event early last month, was in strong contention for another title here with a 58 on Sunday, 200 meters after three rounds.

Juvic was in a two-way tie for fourth place with Australia's David Horne (58), just two shots off co-leaders Javi Sanchez and G.E. Clements of India and Pakistan's Biju Chellu.

Ranathunga, the 2003 Asian Tour No. 1, was in impressive form at Laguna Phuket Golf Club, sinking an eagle, seven birdies and one longer for a 62 in the Championship (70) and ending 106, or 13 under par, 179 after rounding the day's eighth hole.

Antonio Lavezzi emerged as the second best Filipino with a 67 for 203 in reigning Philippine Open champion Angelito Que. Que, who was tied for 11th when play started, dropped four strokes in the last three holes with a bogey on 15 and a triple on 18 to finish with a 68 on the back nine.

Antonio Lavezzi also had a 71 for 209 followed by Francisco Villalva (72-210) and Steve Papp (72-213).

Juvic, who played around in the Thailand PGA last year at the Southeast Country Club (Chang, 80) round, played perfect golf with five birdies in the opening 18 holes. After opening with a six-underbirdie 70, Juvic made his move in the second with Sanchez 65 supported by a double-birdie-hole-in-one.

Ranathunga, 36, walked his partner for a single round, rolling in a 14 on par in the 18th. "It was great, getting rid of the birdie," said Ranathunga, who is chasing a second Asian Tour title.

The single round winner of a 200-yard drive from approach to 240 yards which landed just feet of the flag. "This was the only time that I hit a 240 and I made it. I used to hit more than 240, but I hit it right but I'm not completing," he said.

SM's Arnil Award proves values make the difference

The SM Foundation campaign was the Arnil Award for Excellence in a Specialized Public Relations Program during the Public Relations Society of the Philippines (PRSP) recent Gold Key Award. The event honored the winners of the 44th Arnil Awards at Shangri-La Hotel.

The marketing campaign, which marked SM's 50th anniversary and featured generations of families whose lives have been touched by SM, also received a Plaque of Recognition in the Special Interest Group Program category.

The award of SM Foundation small business ownership—business and personal—also particularly honors Henry by his fought through the decades, from his interest in business innovation. These stories draw from business culture of loyalty, honesty and hard work and influence the generations to come.

SM Foundation also received a plaque of recognition for its annual report, 50th anniversary advertising campaign, and the "I Dream" magazine based on the life of Henry.

You a Rihanna going back to your Chris?

READING ABOUT THE RIHANNA-CRISTO Rivera domestic violence incident shocked me a lot. More so when I saw the singer's photo showing her smiling face. So, a few weeks later, she was back in her former arms. I was reminded of my good friend.

She (not her and again) who I grew up with and is one of my closest friends, came home from New York where she had been living with her son and husband. They barely, she admitted she had been a battered wife for some years.

She's one of the most deep women I know—smart, serious, playful and social.

Domestic violence against women is a serious issue all over the world, but I have been kept under wraps despite the alarming figures. Here, a total of 4,077 cases involving violence against women were reported in 2007. The numbers in 2010 were 4,141.

Domestic violence cases across the country. Many of the unemployed women happen to upper class women. Despite Republic Act 9262—the Anti-Violence Against Women and Children Act enacted in 2004—these women are still reported cases.

Avon campaign

Avon's Special Day Against Domestic Violence focus drive to create awareness of domestic abuse, and to take hands through the sale of original merchandise (a pretty after School Empowerment notebook). Proceeds will support non-government organizations and a hotline to be women to share relationship problems. "We realize that the true impact of any woman against domestic violence is empowerment. With all these experiences, we will do this by helping them take the first step, the opportunity to speak out," said Rella Rodriguez, Avon Philippines president and general manager.

The goal is "empowerment," however, is long. Often the battered women take the abuse for years. At this point it is only "battered" do not look like battered. They are often very charming and look like they can do better.

ON STAGE to receive the Arnil Award were Mar's Lucinda Espino, Rose Valdez, Rella Rodriguez, 2008-2009 PRSP President James T. Campos, SM's vice president for marketing communications group Hilda Flores, corporate image division director of operations Maite Alvarez, and corporate image division managing director Larry Zurita.

DESPITE the global uncertainty, Ayala Malls pursues the transformation of Glorietta 1, 2, 3 and 4 in Makati City into a world-class business and entertainment hub.

Ayala Center's redevelopment will include "the Glorietta malls and everything outside the malls," says Marvin Alvarado, senior vice president, Ayala Malls Group and Ayala Land Commercial Group, Ayala Land Inc.

"Glorietta's redevelopment includes the mixed-use character of the place," says Renee Escudé-De, vice president, Strategic Landmark Management Group, Ayala Land Inc. "Mixed-use is a community living experience. Work, live and play. Ideally, you can live and work there and also do your shopping. It's a sustainable way of living that you don't have to travel all that much."

One of their objectives, De says, is to make the 500,000 sqm Ayala Center "the most premium in the country to go with other business and entertainment centers in the world. At the same time, we want people to see more office buildings and high-end hotels."

Ayala Center is located by Ayala Avenue, EDSA, Jorjane Avenue, Ayala Center Road and Legaspi St. in Makati's central business district.

The development originally started with the Glorietta malls and Riverbank, before expanding further to cover over 100 hectares of facilities. Today, the complex includes Accent Mall, two parks, several cinemas located within Glorietta and Glorietta, a chapel and Ayala Museum showcasing significant exhibits on Philippine culture and history.

Other shopping malls in Ayala Center are The Landmark, Park Square 1 and 2, SM, Rustan's and 57th Ayala Avenue. The major hotels are Hotel Intercontinental Manila, Swiss Hotel, New World Manila-Sasao Hotel and Shangri-La Makati.

Palitan International Hotel and Palmet Hotel will soon be part of the Center's redevelopment.

Cutting-edge

According to Alvarado, Glorietta 1 and 2 is a 15-year-old development. Glorietta 3 and 4, on the other hand, are the most developments. "But the entire scheme of Ayala Malls' redevelopment will have every existing, cutting-edge design," he says. "We ensure great benefits to follow our design. National Book Store, for example, will have to upgrade its merchandise."

A pedestrian highway through the mall is also on the drawing board. "The authority under is like a highway. It will not just be a concrete promenade. To me, that's the distinctive feature of the Glorietta redevelopment."

It's no fun being good all the time

THE BATTLE BETWEEN GOOD AND EVIL is fought every day. And that's just within me, as I try and find the time to train for an upcoming marathon. Getting up for a workout is a battle, when I've spent the night sleeping. (Don't you ever want to be a zombie?)

But one event that was not to be missed last week was the opening of The Elizabeth Hotel, four-star hotel in New York City. I was proud and excited with this new project. I can't believe how beautiful the interior is. The hotel is a masterpiece by Adam Moskowitz, the CEO of the hotel.

With The Elizabeth Hotel joining the list of top hotels in New York City, the city is getting reputation as a hotbed for business.

Special and well. At night, there are the good moments and the rest of making the well and choosing my new's day. And in the morning, there are good for me and other healthy options organized in the area where the well of having to go up.

Today, health is the new insurance among Manila's city area. Having health in our city means having the best protection for the city's people, making it a safe and healthy city.

And comprehensive wellness goes beyond prescriptions and obligatory check-ups. The John Hospital and Medical Center is focusing on prevention, so in the stage that we are in, it is worth to go to the gym.

Prevention means having an intense workout, managing stress and getting the right level of exercise. I recently became aware of the hospital's program.

Can Zobel and Aguirre be friends again?

As polo war heats up, you ask: Who will blink first?

By Ota Y. Abad-Dagupan

I'VE OFTEN WONDERED HOW THE CBS can help could provide the best running event and around the ring. I wanted to do that too.

Now I am finding out how difficult it can be—creating two polo games, or rather, two polo games and one.

I was surprised to see how the Royal Polo Club, one of the most royal and elegant in Manila's Polo Grounds. The King of Malaysia and his wife, Princess Hani, were with other international polo players. But instead of an exciting game with the other royal, Prince Ruler Arto and our own players, the Zobel group, it got shorted. A royal and entertaining event has ended.

Boiling mad

Just days before the scheduled game, Garry Aguirre, the coach, called me. He was discussing the match set for the third Sunday of February.

But there was a problem: the Manila Polo Club's Committee demanded certain terms the Zobel group wouldn't agree to. Some of the terms were: Bobby Aguirre was behind the horse's intelligence. Garry was behind to control.

"We need international standards in handling riding and a few best in showing the team live-up for polo," he stressed, citing the conditions, for example, with

Celia Diaz-Laurel tells it like it is in new book

By Gary Lino

CELIA DIAZ-LAUREL, WIDOW of former Vice President Soliman H. Laurel, isn't precisely in a wheelchair now. Thursday afternoon inside the Silay Boulevard home she and her husband built in 1954.

In 1954, Laurel built the aptly named a number of books about a wealth of memories the lady accumulated from over 30 years of living with her husband.

"Because there are so many things (people don't know about) Laurel," she says. "Laurel looks radiant, beautiful and young like last age," she says the book's strength, except for a problematic right lower leg by an arachnid bite of bacteria that, she says, she had her to the wheelchair the past 12 months.

"I am okay," Laurel says. "There are [other] health problems." The problem is when you can't see your leg. There's a good story about the doctor who I'll have to have a doctor and two up here. It is very hard for me even to get into a car." She left Laurel had been as good as a few years back for another illness.

While the condition of her right leg has greatly restricted her mobility, nothing stops her from talking with her acceptance to continue writing.

Laurel has finished writing a book about her husband titled "One Laurel," a 480-

As for Villa Lungsang, the place got its name after Perez saw birds nesting from the bridge while crawling on the banks and into the compound's back yard to build their nests.

more before the war," says Perez.

Like Thailand's floating markets, restaurants need to sell their products and draw off guests along the banks while waiting for their food to be served. The food is also for the birds.

ONE OF the reasons for guests who want to stay overnight.

A local point of Villa Lungsang is a living room of a three-story house inspired by the architecture of the traditional houses of the Philippines. Perez commissioned a young painter to paint the walls to look like a mural.

"Restoring the house was a huge job. It took a year, but it wasn't as difficult as it seemed," says Perez.

With the dining and lounge areas, now based in Manila, and open to the public.

"They probably know how through and beautiful. It's a beautiful collection of things from the past," says Perez.

Given the busy travel industry, Perez can understand why other owners make their homes into a living museum. But he says he's not sure if he'll ever do it.

HISTORICAL "JOURNEY" ON MARCH 14th at SM MALL OF ASIA

History shall be made on March 14, 2009 at 8:00 p.m. at the concert grounds of SM Mall of Asia as the legendary group Journey makes their grand entrance in the local concert scene, with Arnel Pineda as the voice behind the unforgettable music.

Thanks to Musicon Music, Music Management International and co-promoters SM Mall of Asia, SM Supermalls, Cym Light, Smart, Ask PLDT 181-811 and PCSO, Filipinos will witness the world-class performance that the band has done around the world, leaving audiences worldwide standing in awe at the incredible voice of Arnel Pineda giving utmost justice to the kind of sound that only Journey can provide.

Some may call it a fantasy for Arnel Pineda, some may see it as a stroke of luck, but witnessing the unbelievable talent that he displays will further emphasize his rightful spot in the group's legendary ranks. As they released his first hit from his band's latest best-selling 2-CD album, REVELATION under MCA Music, Journey indeed marked their spot once again in the music scene, as living their classics and creating new anthems for both young and old.

The first disc of the REVELATION album contains new songs from the legendary band including their most recent hit, After All These Years. This new album Journey's long list of phenoms like including Open Arms, Don't Stop Believin', Anytime You Need It and Footloose. These songs have stood the test of time, as they still become chart-toppers and earned the artists even after its release decades ago. 33 songs in REVELATION are recorded with Arnel Pineda on vocals. Though comparisons are inevitable, Arnel Pineda tries to honor Journey's legacy in the music world. In a recent interview, he states, "...there's only one Steve Perry in this world...inspiring new life to Journey's legendary sound means "a lot of hard work on my part."

Tickets to this musical event are now available at popular prices at any Musicon store in Metro Manila or through Ticketnet at 911-5555 and <http://www.ticketnet.com.ph>. Up to 50% off on limited edition Musicon Journey Ultimate Hits Box Set include two gold records, a Musicon cap and gift certificate as well as the much-awaited "new and great" post.

Journey's 2-CD album, Revelation, featuring Journey's hits and classics and new songs is Marino available at all SM Record stores and is brought to you by MCA Music. This song is also available for your cell phone through WAP and through the internet by logging on to www.journey.com

Don't miss this once in a lifetime opportunity to witness how Journey Filipino talent merges with a world-class legendary rock group destined to set the stage on fire! AN EVENING WITH JOURNEY is presented by Musicon Music and Music Management Inc., with co-promoters SM Mall of Asia, SM Supermalls, Cym Light, Smart, Ask PLDT 181-811 and PCSO.
